Voting Continues Heavy in Naming 2 All-Star Teams

W. Cook and Sommerville Tied in Commercial League Race

TAYLOR SETS PACE
All Ballots Must Be Turned in by 6 o'Clock Tuesday

Voting continued heavy Saturday in the selection of two all-star football teams to represent Hope the night of the dedication of the new football field at Fair Park, set for Thursday, July 7.

Roy Taylor, Hope High School athlete, continued to set the pace in the City League with a total of 95 votes. Wallace Cook and Bill Sommerville held the lead among the Commercial league players with 70 votes each.

Clifford Russell appeared to be the outstanding catcher among City League players, polling a total of 93 votes.

Paul Philbrick and Jack Witt, both pitchers in the Commercial circuit were running a neck-and-neck race. Saturday's tabulation gave Philbrick 69 votes to Witt's 61.

Selection of the two teams by popular vote of players and fans will be announced next Wednesday afternoon. All ballots positively must be in the office of Hope Star by 6 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

On page three of this issue appears the ballot for both teams. Select your team at once, and mail or bring it to Hope Star. Vote only once. Doubling up or "single shots" do not count.

Officials Appeal for Sane Holiday

State Police to Be on Duty—Fireworks is Banned in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Chief Pitcock of the Little Rock Police Department and Chief Albright of the State Police Department are asking the co-operation of the public in observance of a sensible week-end holiday Sunday and Monday.

"They said that Sunday, a holiday and Monday, another holiday because it is the Fourth of July, will witness the deaths and injuries of several Arkansians, judging from past records. They asked that the public co-operate with officers in keeping the holiday death-toll at the minimum. Carelessness, thoughtlessness and recklessness will be the cause of death and injury over the week-end, they said."

"I have instructed my officers to do everything within their power to safeguard the public," Chief Pitcock said. "However, about all we can do is ask its co-operation."

All State Police On Duty
Chief Albright said that his entire force will be on duty Sunday and Monday, but there is little that they can do in the way of additional precautions.

"My men will be at picnics throughout the state in response to requests by sponsors of these events that officers be on hand to handle traffic and to quiet disturbances," Chief Albright said. "There is little we can do Sunday and Monday that we don't try to do every day."

Fireworks Banned Here
Chief Pitcock reminded that a city ordinance prohibits not only the discharge of fireworks in Little Rock but also prohibits their sale. He said that this ordinance will be enforced to the best of the department's ability, but that only the co-operation of the public would prevent discharge of fireworks with resulting injuries throughout the city Sunday and Monday.

"If people would only remember Sunday and Monday that when they speed in automobiles, toss firecrackers and do at the insane and childish things that they are endangering human life, the problem of the Police Department would be much easier," Chief Pitcock said.

"Crime Wave" Hits Sportsmen's Center
JACKSON, Wyo.—(AP)—The Jackson hole country, rendezvous for cattle thieves in pioneer days, has a "crime wave." County Attorney W. W. Neilson reported $1,000 worth of merchandise has been stolen from parked cars and stores of the "hole" during recent weeks. The "hole," where once herds of stolen cattle were hidden up, has been a hide-out for lawless men since 1937.

In Kiowa county there were 18 women prisoners last year but not a single man.

At Least 200,000 Soldiers Dead, Many Others Wounded

16 Millions of Chinese Have Fled Homes in Year Old Conflict—Japanese Treasury Is Strained—Foreign Trade Slipping

A full year of bloody fighting across the best farmlands and through the mightiest cities of China has produced results whose long-time meaning no man can read. But there are other results, since the "border incident" of last July 7, which can be read all too clearly. Here are some of them:

At least 200,000 men lie dead. The ashes of 75,000 Japanese have been shipped home in neat little urns. More than 125,000 Chinese have fled where they fell. Far more than a half million, on both sides have suffered wounds.

Unnumbered thousands of men, women, and children are dead or maimed, bombed in their homes and streets.

The provinces of China—Peking, Tientsin, Shanghai, and Nanking—have fallen before the invader. Nanking, in addition to the expected horrors of war, suffered the unbridled bestialities of a soldiery whose discipline completely broke down.

Of China's million and a half square miles about 300,000 are under Japanese bayonets, with Japanese diplomats desperately trying to establish puppet governments there.

Sixteen million people have fled from their homes in the Shanghai-Nanking area to congregate in the interior, menaced by hunger and disease. In addition to the destruction directly caused by the fighting, at least a half billion dollars' worth of damage has been done by the retreating Chinese in their effort to make all land captured by the Japanese a worthless rubble of ruins and smoldering ashes. Deliberate floods released by the Chinese to check the invaders have wrought further ruin. A terrifying proportion of the best farm land and the most productive factories and mills in China lie in ruins.

Yet not a single large Chinese army has been captured or put out of action, and responsible Japanese officials have called on their people to prepare for a 10-year war.

Japanese Treasury Strained
In Japan, the military has gained complete control of the government, and, bolstered by the realization that it has floundered into a major war, has clamped down on the people a rigid wartime discipline and industrial and military mobilization.

An overseas war costing the Japanese $5,000,000 a day is sapping the resources of the island empire, while the tremendous strain of supplying an expeditionary force of at least a million men so taxes Japanese industry

Football Schedule Complete; Gladney White Is Ineligible

Star Tackle Has Played Four Years, School Record Shows

SEVEN HOME GAMES
Bobcats to Open Season Against Haynesville, La., September 16

Coach Foy H. Hammons announced Saturday the completion of the 1938 Hope High School football schedule—the arrival of Assistant Coach Bill Brasher—and the ineligibility of Gladney White, all-state tackle with Camden school last year.

Although White had been elected sub-captain of the Camden High School squad for next year, he moved to Hope with his parents the first of this year.

In declaring White ineligible for further high school competition, Coach Hammons said that he had gone to Haynesville, La., and checked records of that school which the coach said showed that White had played three years at Haynesville before moving to Camden where he played last fall.

In his first year at Camden, White starred in every game at tackle position and was the selection of most sports editors for their all-state teams.

Brasher Arrives Here
Assistant Coach Bill Brasher, Mrs. Brasher and their four-year-old daughter, arrived in Hope Friday night from Bauxite where Brasher turned out consistent winning teams the past seven years.

Assistant Coach Brasher will take up his duties at the start of the fall semester of school. They will reside on South Elm street.

The 1938 Hope High School football schedule, now complete, will give the Bobcats a total of 11 games, seven to be played at home and four on foreign field.

The Football Schedule
September 16—Haynesville, La., there.
September 23—Clarksville at Hope.
September 30—Smackover at Hope.
October 7—DeQueen at Hope.
October 14—Jonesboro at Hope.
October 21—Nashville at Nashville.
October 28—Camden at Hope.
November 4—Blytheville at Hope.
November 11—Prescott at Hope.
November 18—Hot Springs at Hot Springs.
November 25—Pine Bluff at Pine Bluff.

Coach Hammons faces a rebuilding task as 14 of 17 letter men of last year were lost through graduation, some of whom were all-state men.

The only three lettermen to return are Eason, Fulkerson and Major Simpson.

Those lost, including the line are: Bright, Stone, W. Parsons, Keith, Jewell, Ramsey, Reese, Aslin, Masters, Wilson, M. Turner, Quimby, Carson and Still.

Body of Youth Is Taken From Peak
McCormick Is Placed in Mortuary After Hard Mountain Climb

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(AP)—Brought from the foot of Sandia Peak under state police escort, the body of Merrill McCormick, 21-year-old heir to a Chicago publishing fortune, rested Saturday in an Albuquerque mortuary.

The final trip was made late Friday afternoon, after Indians and mountain climbers, who had been working since dawn to bring down the remains from the jagged face of the cliff, had transferred their tarpaulin-wrapped burden to a waiting ambulance.

About 20 Indians and weather-beaten forest rangers stood by the ambulance, heads bared, as Albert Simms, step-father of the youth, said, "Mrs. Simms and I thank you from the bottom of our hearts."

Simms had watched the grim funeral cortege for more than half an hour as it wound slowly over the rocky slope separating the waiting hearse from the entrance to Canyon del Agua, on whose steep sides the body was found.

At the Indians and foresters came within gunshot, cries of "water" were heard from the party, some of whom had had nothing to eat or drink since the day before, when the body was found.

Men were immediately sent to meet the solemn procession and help bring the body, lashed to a stretcher, the remaining distance.

The difficult journey marked the close of an intensive eight-day search that started June 23 when he disappeared on a mountain climbing expedition with Richard Whitmer, 20-year-old Princeton student.

Both boys apparently fell from the sheer heights of Sandia Peak, McCormick on one side and Whitmer on the other. Whitmer's broken body was found a week ago Friday, on the rocks under the west cliff of the peak.

Late Thursday, a party of Sandia Indians found McCormick's body high on the northeast face of the peak, opposite the spot where Whitmer's body was found and hidden from the search of hundreds of men who combed the western half of the mountain side.

All night the body lay in the remote ledge overlooking rough, wild canyon country deep in the Sandia mountains. A party of staid Indians stood guard.

France Stiffens Attitude Toward Japan—Halts Imports

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The federal government overspent its income by $1,459,000,000 in the fiscal year which ended Thursday night. The new year will bring a deficit of approximately $3,000,000,000 because of the new lending-spending program.

Treasury figures on operations for the fiscal year just closed showed income of $6,241,226.99 and expenditures $7,766,374,277.27.

Unemployment Increased
GENEVA.—(AP)—The United States was one of only three countries in which employment increased in the second quarter of 1938 compared to the first quarter, the International Labor office announced Saturday.

The United States figures were based on AFL calculation. The figures showed that 11,126,107 unemployed persons during the second quarter of 1938 and 8,312,825 during the second quarter of 1937; and 10,973,000 unemployed during the first quarter of 1938.

New French Order
PARIS, France.—(AP)—France further stiffened its attitude toward Spain Saturday by ordering the French ambassador to Tokyo to inform the Japanese foreign office of possible "unfortunate" effect of anti-French attacks in Japanese newspapers.

The French ambassador was instructed to deny Japanese press accusations of an extensive arms traffic flowing from French Indo-China into China to support Chiang Kai-shek.

The move Saturday followed an abrupt French order suspending importation of Japanese merchandise on a quota list.

Cotton Cards Are On Printing Press
More Than 2,225,000 Being Printed by Federal Government

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Government printing presses are turning out more than 2,250,000 red and white cards to be used in regulating sales of this year's cotton crop.

White cards will be issued to farmers who are co-operating with the agriculture department's efforts to reduce production. These growers have kept their plantings within acreage allotted to them by the department.

Under the marketing quota system set up under the new crop control law, recipients of white cards will be permitted to sell all the cotton they raise, plus any left over from previous years.

But sales of those who receive red cards will be restricted. These growers will be designated as "non-co-operators." They will be farmers who planted in excess of acreage allotments assigned them under the control program. Each red card will state how much the grower may sell. Sales in excess of these quotas will be subject to penalty taxes.

Cards will be essential in selling, trading or bartering cotton. Under marketing quota regulations promulgated by the department buyers are forbidden, under penalty of a fine not exceeding $500, to purchase cotton except from holders of marketing cards.

The regulations require buyers to keep detailed records of their purchases and make regular reports to the department.

Gummers likewise will be required to keep records and make reports of cotton ginned for each individual farmer.

If the holder of a red card desires to sell more than the quota specified on his card, he may do so by paying a penalty tax of 2 cents a pound on the excess. It will be the obligation of the buyer to collect the penalty and turn it over to the government.

Lists of each farm's marketing quota will be posted in each county. Growers dissatisfied with their quotas.

What Is Good Is What Works

PLACIDLY indifferent to the zealots who howl that we must take either Communism or Fascism day after tomorrow, and like it, the people of Sweden go about the creation of their own design for living.

That it is a good one is attested by the celebration in Stockholm of the 80th birthday of King Gustaf V. More than a million of his subjects contributed to a gift of a million-dollar check which was presented to the king. He immediately passed it on to a fund for fighting infantile paralysis and rheumatic disease.

Half a million jammed the streets of the capital to cheer the king. They shouted for "Mr. G." the incognito under which the king used to play tennis, and by which title he is popularly known.

The king himself paid the highest honor to his position, when in a speech he referred to himself as "the premier citizen of a free country." It was a true description of his status, far more accurate than "king." No more noble political title has yet been conceived by the mind of man.

EVEN to his Socialist ministers, King Gustaf is known as "a good fellow," and the left-wing papers in noting the anniversary were united in proclaiming that even to radicals, a good monarchy is better than a bad republic. For they know that Sweden has approached more nearly than any other country to a condition where there are few who are very rich, and few who are very poor, and where all are free.

This picture of a great country paying a largely spontaneous tribute to its ruler, and doing it in a dignified, decent manner without needing the populace with nationalistic hokum or herding it into synthetic huzzas, is like a light in a world of strife and turmoil, of bitterness and hatred.

This is no plea for monarchy. The combination of circumstances that make monarchy a success in Sweden probably does not exist in the same degree anywhere else in the world.

BUT the Swedish celebration does point strongly to the fact that actuality is what counts in government. If it works, if it makes people reasonably happy and secure, if it keeps them free, the name by which a governmental system is called means nothing.

A glance around the world shows that it is possible to have oppression and suppression under governments called "people's governments." It is possible to have tyranny and brute force under a system of elections that is in name republican. The substance is the thing, not the label.

Professional Care

ALL thinking people who have any regard for what beneficial social institutions civilization has gives us will find considerable food for thought in the news about "Bachelors' Buttons, Inc." of New York.

"Bachelors' Buttons, Inc., is starting out innocuously enough as a one-woman button-sewing and string-around-the-finger-tieing organization, but you can tell from the air of excitement surrounding the project that expansion days are coming, and, friends, what then?

The one-woman service is a kind of substitute brain-around-the-house for bachelors. When you hire the service you hire a periodical dropper-in who repairs your wardrobe. But more than that, she performs a complete check-up and advisory service which guarantees that no man who subscribes will ever suffer such social embarrassments as result from wearing the wrong tie with the right shirt, or the right trousers with the wrong coat.

Do you sense the menace? Are you aware how many men embrace matrimony principally because they have grown so very tired of never having the right clothes in proper condition at the right time?

Women of America, watch it.

Cannabis Indica to the Doctors, It's Dynamite to Society

(This is the second and concluding article by Dr. Fishbein on marihuana-smoking.)

The first effects of marihuana, or cannabis indica, on the human being are a lessening of the ability to control thoughts and action.

People who have smoked marihuana are easily distracted. Later there comes a feeling of exaltation and of well-being, so that the smoker feels that he is much stronger and has much greater power than he really has. From time to time he has dreams and illusions.

The imagination of the smoker is sometimes stimulated to the point of delirium. For this reason some writers have indulged in the smoking of cannabis indica as a help to their literary efforts. The results are compositions which are actually ludicrous, and in other instances sensational or sensual.

While no two human beings are affected in exactly the same way, it has sometimes been found that the smoking of marihuana tends to intensify certain characteristics. For example, the person who is kind and genial will become even more kind; the quarrelsome person goes around looking for fights; the timid one indulges in all sorts of abnormal fears; and the criminal is given a false courage which has led in some instances to the development of serious crimes, including murder.

Records have been made public in the courts of suicides and particularly sex crimes related to the smoking of cannabis indica. One young man in Florida while under the influence of marihuana cigarettes thought that somebody was going to cut off his arms and legs. In a frenzy he seized an ax, killed his father and his mother, two brothers and a sister.

Cannabis indica is not believed to be habit-forming in the same manner that opium and cocaine are habit-forming. Many of the people who try the drug get over it, and are not thereafter addicted.

But in the person of weakened mentality or in the criminal the drug almost inevitably leads to extraordinary actions which are fatal to the user, if not productive of crime.

Moderate use of this drug is not without danger. The fact that it can break down the ability of the individual to recognize intervals of time and space, the fact that it makes it impossible for the user to perceive accurately what is going on, indicate that the combination of marihuana smoking and motor car driving is likely to be more than serious not only for the smoker but also for the community in which he lives. These are times particularly

HOLDUP HONEYMOON

BY EDWIN RUTT Copyright 1938, NEA Service Inc.

CASE OF CHARACTERS
JOHN SANDHAM—here he thought he was on top of the world until he snatched into KELLY ARCHER—here she thought she was headed for the altar until she snatched into ED, the WEASEL—scoundrel, he thought he was headed some-where, too, but affairs somehow got mixed up.

Yesterday Joe came to unload the candy before entering (Sandham and Kelly) down the highway like a red-headed deer. The Weasel raises his hand to shout.

CHAPTER X
A QUICK glance was enough to show Mr. Sandham what to do. With a lightning-like movement he knocked the Weasel's hand toward the ground.

"Don't shoot, for God's sake," he shouted. "I'll get her." Then he was off, speeding after the flying Kelly. He overhauled her within 40 yards.

The Weasel lumbered up, puffing.

"I—I could kill you both," Kelly said savagely.

"Hoity-toity," said the Weasel. He grasped her arm, led her back to the car and they started again. The Weasel still holding the gun.

"I wish I had that gun for two minutes," she said spitefully. "I'd make the fur fly around here."

"Dis dame," said the Weasel jovially, "is damn near as tough as Cissy."

The crossing of the border was uneventful. A preoccupied customs official took a sweeping glance at the empty car, Joe filled out the necessary papers and they were in. Through the ceremony the Weasel sat on the front seat with Kelly, his gun pressed against her side.

Once on the road for St. Catharines, however, Kelly found speech again.

"Look here," said Kelly, in perplexity. "What is this anyway?"

"Shall we tell her?" Joe asked the Weasel.

"Why not?" said the great man. "We're almost there."

"Well then, Miss Archer," said Joe, "let me inform you that you're being kidnapped."

Kelly jumped. "Kidnaped?"

For a moment Kelly looked grave. Then she gave a light laugh.

"That," she said, "is the most outlandish thing I've ever heard of."

Joe spoke now at length.

"For a long time now I've been looking around for a way to make some easy dough. Well I run into you by chance. And when that business of going to Boston came up, it gave me an idea. I thought you came from a pretty well-to-do family, probably. Your uncle's house was quite hot—totsy, anyhow. And I . . . well, I decided to make a killing. I never, my dear young lady, had the slightest intention of taking you to Boston. I was waiting for a convenient opportunity to slug you over the head, toss you in the back of the car and hit for the camp of a friend of mine up in Vermont. He isn't using it now and it would have been an ideal place to keep you until I could have gotten in touch with your folks.

"Unfortunately for me, the Weasel got into the picture and I have to split with him. But so what? My cut of the dough we'll get from your father will keep me in clover for a long time. And as for this cussed candy truck," he stated viciously, "I'll run it into the first river once I've got the money."

"What utter rot," said Kelly. "Beyond my name, you know practically nothing about me."

"Don't! I've already told you that I suspected you came from a wealthy family. Well—he reached into a pocket on the inside of the door and drew out the paper that the Weasel had obtained from the filling station attendant—"this confirmed it. Plenty."

Wonderingly, Kelly took it. For a moment she stared wide-eyed at her own likeness. Finally she spoke, defiantly.

"If you think you can scare my father, you're crazy. He knows I can take care of myself."

"Maybe so. But he'll come through to keep your mother from worrying. She's probably hysterical by now."

Kelly's eyes narrowed to bright slits.

"I've never known anyone," she said, "that I detested as much as I do you."

"That's perfectly okay with me," said Joe. "Your opinion is immaterial. I'm after money and nothing more."

"You said it," put in the Weasel, who had listened to all this with approving ears.

For a short time there was silence. Finally Kelly said: "Listen, Joe."

"Hello."

"All those—those things you told me, then? They were"—her voice dropped—"just lies?"

Joe laughed, an unnecessarily loud laugh. "You mean about calling for you? Wanting to marry you and all that? Gee, women are dumb. I never knew one yet who didn't turn out to be a sucker directly a man told her he loved her. Of course, they were lies. You don't think I'd be dope enough to want to get married, do you?"

Kelly's face twisted.

"Now I know," she said, her mouth tight, "that you're the rottenest person I've ever met."

TWILIGHT drew around Ontario. Thickened into darkness. The car droned on. And presently the lights of St. Catharines winked ahead of them.

"Right through da town," the Weasel directed.

A half mile out of St. Catharines, the Weasel ordered Joe to turn off on a dirt road which led in the general direction of Lake Ontario. Down this the car plunged through shadows for ten minutes. Then, suddenly, the Weasel's left hand gripped Joe's shoulder.

"Stop here," he commanded tersely.

Joe strained his eyes through the gloom. With difficulty he discerned the outlines of a small clapboard house, set back at some distance from the road. From where the car was parked no light was visible. The place seemed as dark and lonely as the road down which they had just come.

"So this is your hideaway, is it?" Kelly said to the Weasel. "What a delightful place. It looks like a deserted grave."

"Ain't so deserted as it looks," said the Weasel. "Cissy'll be waitin' fer me inside, sure."

"Cissy?"

"His girl," Joe explained. "The place does seem dark though, Weasel. Maybe Cissy took a run-out powder."

"Not a chance," said the Weasel. And said it almost reluctantly, Joe thought.

Leaving the car they stole quietly around the house. A light was shining from a kitchen window and the shade was only half-drawn. They peered in and perceived a blond girl playing solitaire at the kitchen table.

"Dat's Cissy," whispered the Weasel.

A modulated whisper from Ed the Weasel might have been likened to steam escaping. Inside, the blond girl raised her head, sat for a second alert and suspicious, like a snake listening.

The Weasel tapped three times on the window pane. Suddenly the blond girl was out of her chair and darting callike across the room. The light went out. A moment of silence passed. Then, through the keyhole of the kitchen door, a voice rasped: "Who's there?"

The Weasel cleared his throat. "Just me, baby," he said loudly. "Open up."

emotions of maturity and the embryos of reproduction. This is all natural enough. I, too, like to think of sweet children as "sexless," and they really are in their hearts. But the trouble is that as they grow, such a stand makes it doubly hard for the parent to acknowledge the inevitable, unless she has owned up to it from the first.

There is safety in telling the young child as much as he or she can happily understand about birth. I do not love the newer ideas of telling all. They rob life of romance and beauty. Early puberty is time for that. And the telling may be put in the hands of a responsible, disinterested person. If you, mother, feel that it will undermine your place with your child. The manner of explaining is important.

Watch company. Protect your small or growing children from the poisonous whisper if you are able. This is hard, I know, but do what you can. Know what goes on and who other children are. I am the last person in the world to stir up suspicion, but safety is the best course. The early attitude to sex, the sexiness, the vulgarities, set an unwholesome moral attitude that will affect later life.

Let the children mix at all ages. I mean by this, to let girls and boys play together. Little children, growing children and adolescents. Good healthy games and social gatherings, supervised wisely, establish good fellowship. They see each other as normal human beings, not suddenly as sex opposites.

Up to seventeen there should be a certain chaperone. Over that, we must trust to their innate sense and strength. Armed with the proper knowledge, and the moral inhibitions trained into them, they will be reasonably safe.

But know WHERE all children are, children of any age. And try to know their associates.

Fine Biography of "Pope of Peace"—Englishman Traces Tasks at Rome

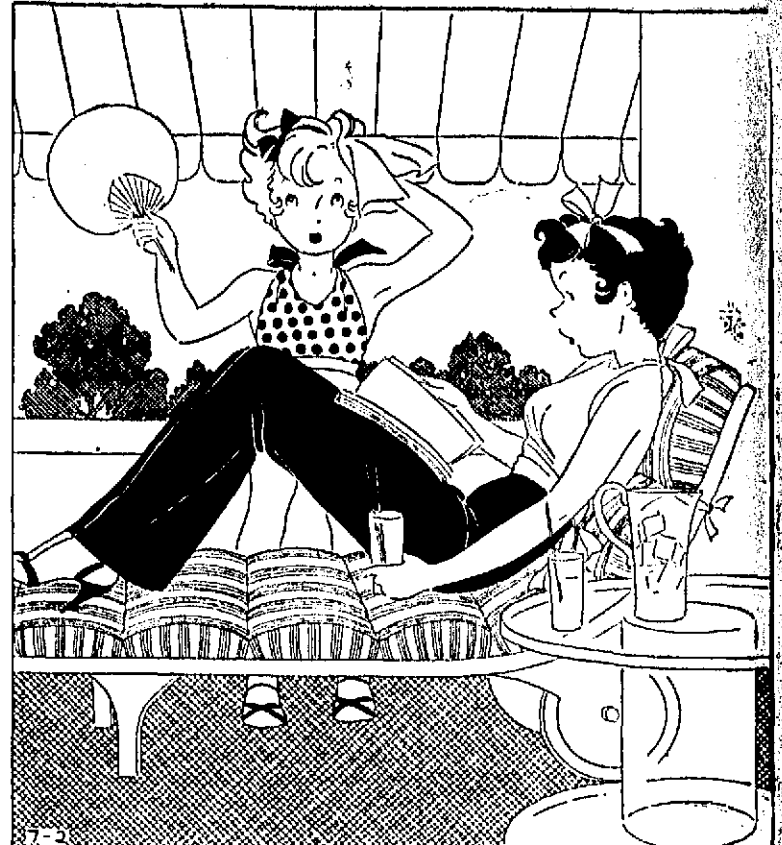

When kind-eyed, student diplomat Achille Ratti mounted the throne of St. Peter, in Rome, February 6, 1922, there descended upon him from his predecessor, Benedict XV, not only the power to govern 300,000,000 Catholics, but also the task of dealing wisely and justly with a war-scarred world.

How Achille Ratti, the "Pope of Peace" as he is called, the most dominant figure ever to occupy the papal throne, has dealt with the forces of Nazism and Communism and their persecutions of the Church is recounted in an excellent biographical study, "Pope Pius XI and World Peace" (Dutton, $3), by the English Lord Clonmore.

Writing interestingly and reverently, Lord Clonmore reveals some of the background of the Pope's relentless battle against atheistic Communism.

All About That Awful Night-Life and Those Awful Wild Creatures

HOLLYWOOD.—Visitors to talkies, town, and the people who write letters to his department, often ask about the "wild life" of Hollywood, and it is as wild as it's cracked up to be.

Well, frankly, it is. There is an astonishing amount of it hereabout, but not the sort of wild life that movie fans think of. A few blocks from Hollywood Boulevard, a few hundred yards from the Trocadero and night club row, and on the fringes of Beverly Hills and the canyon colonies, roam coyotes, deer, mountain lions, rabbits, coon and quail.

A coyote has been shot almost within rifle range of Grauman's Chinese Theater. Pat O'Brien killed a bobcat in his back yard. Two deer wandered onto Hollywood Boulevard last year, and a fine buck was crippled by an automobile on the road to Warner Brothers. A pack of coyotes lives in the arroyos of Universal's huge back lot, and of a moonlight night they sit out on a nearby hill and swear terribly at my dogs. In the nearby San Fernando Valley, which contains an estimated $10,000,000 worth of movie estates and homes, sportsmen-flyers sometimes war on coyotes from the air, hedge-hopping their planes and blazing away at the critters with shot-guns.

But know WHERE all children are, children of any age. And try to know their associates.

The Witching (?) Hour of Midnight

Yes, there's plenty of Hollywood wild life, and it comes into its own after midnight. That's the hour when the town itself becomes almost deserted; when fine-feathered chorus and extra girls go to foist in their apartments; when a few predatory males go into the night club caves where other denizens of the gay spots already are picking the last bones of the day's gossip.

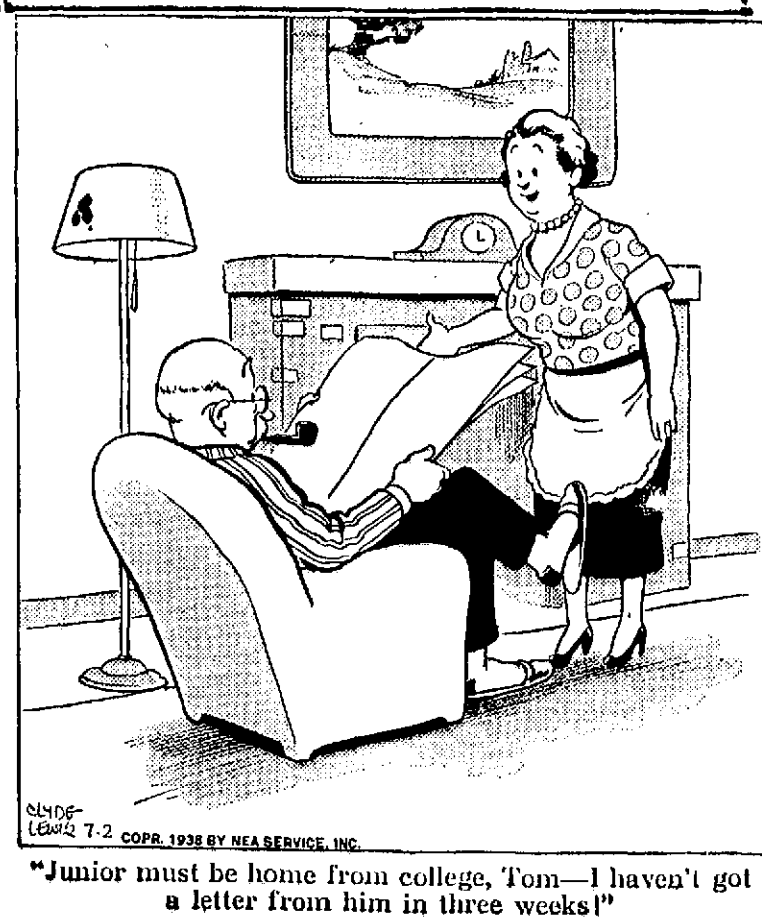

first as Papal Nuncio to Poland, when Achille Ratti, himself, faced possible death at the hands of the Reds, and subsequently, as Pope, his dealings with Communistic persecutions in Russia, Spain and Mexico.

Clonmore treats at length of the encyclical "Quadragesimo Anno," in which Pius XI outlines relations of labor and capital, and the ultimate goal of a living social justice. It is this encyclical, as well as that of Leo XIII, "Rerum Novarum," that has been acclaimed by many economists as the best program for a well organized society.

All in all you will enjoy the personal picture Clonmore has so admirably drawn of the Pope and his staggering task.—T. H.

A few hours before killing the Christmas turkey, Spaniards feed it forcibly on old Spanish sherry to make the meat more palatable. Shorn of head and feathers, the bird then is hung in the open air, preferably in clear moonlight.

What do you see when the flag goes by?
Just a banner of red, white and blue?
Just a patch of gay color against the sky?
What does it mean to you?
Perhaps a vision comes of Betsy Ross—
Red cheeks aflame to meet her lands' appeal.
White, skittish fingers stitching patiently,
And blue eyes flashing with an ardent zeal.
Perhaps some think of blue colonial coats
At Valley Forge that winter long ago
And crimson stains left by bare patriot foot
That still trudged on across the fields of snow.
And some will see the flaming poppies red
Beneath blue skies that lie across the sea,
And brave young souls made white by sacrifice—
The sacrifice by which a world is free.
What do you see when the flag goes by?
Just a banner of red, white and blue?
Just a patch of color against the sky?
What does it mean to you?—Selected.

NEWS CHURCHES

First Christian V. A. Hammond, Pastor

Sunday school attendance was up again last Sunday. The average for the past quarter is 106. Old man "summer slump" won't have a chance if we do that well for July. Let's watch out for him this week. Be in your class room at 9:45.

The pastor brings the second of the series of sermons on present day problems facing the church for his Sunday morning message when he talks on "God's Unemployment Problem."

Earth's greatest epic is the story of the work of the disciples of Jesus, those employed by God to build His Kingdom. And though it is earth's greatest epic, it has not yet been crowned with success. God still has His unemployment problem. His sign is still out over all the earth: "Help Wanted." When industry and business have long ago stopped hiring new workers, God still calls for workers in His fields and vineyards. Come hear the sermon Sunday morning.

There will be no meeting of the Missionary Society in July.

The regular monthly meeting of the church board will be held at the church on Tuesday night, July 5, at 7:45 o'clock. All members are urged to attend this important meeting.

The Men's Supper will be held on the church lawn on Thursday night, July 7. An excellent program has been prepared. All the men of the church are expected to attend this supper meeting. Mr. Delzell is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Monday is the Fourth of July. The pastor will speak Sunday night on "Fagan Emblems On the Altar." Taking a text from Moffatt's translation of the Fifth Psalm, "Thine enemies have bawled inside thy house, set up their emblems there," the sermon frankly discusses the blindness of the church to the discordant blare (that word "bawled" of Moffatt's is perfect) which the pagan gospel of pride, of arrogance and power, of hate, of commercial success, nuke when proclaimed or tolerated in God's house. The church can stand any amount of pagan "bawling" when it is done outside its doors, but when it is done inside its walls, its glory—and its power—are diminished or destroyed. The church in this generation has often been called to loyalty to muddled thinking, to debased thinking and to the closed mind, even to blasphemous denials of the very ethics of Jesus.

You are cordially invited to worship with us Sunday night and hear the sermon on "Pagan Symbols On the Altar."

THEATERS

Brian Aherne and Constance Bennett in "Merrily We Live"

At the Saenger

Because they are so well acquainted with life, having interpreted so many phases of it in their characterizations, actors, perhaps more than any other class of professional people, aspire to writing careers.

During the filming of "Merrily We Live," Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Saenger theater, a number of the members of the cast confessed that they hoped to gain recognition in this field. Alan Mowbray was the most envious of the lot. His play, "Dinner is Served," already has been given production and his trilogy of one-act plays, "A Bang and Two Echoes," published. Clarence Kolb, during his forty years on the stage, has had considerable experience as a play doctor and also has written a couple under his own by-line.

Billie Burke has long treasured the idea of turning to writing. She set the date for beginning as the time when she would end her stage and screen careers. That seems far distant, and in the meantime her daughter Patricia is showing marked ability in this direction. Miss Burke had hoped that Patricia would take an active part in stage production, following in the footsteps of her father, the late Flo Ziegfeld, but late seems to decree that Miss Burke carry on the stage tradition and let Patricia fulfill Miss Burke's own ambitions as an author.

Gags spring up like mushrooms and thrive like sunflowers on the Laurel and Hardy set. Practical jokes enjoy an open season and there's no limit on the ingenuity of any prankster. One may find dry-ice in one's pocket when reaching for cigarettes or may sit in a pool of water on a chair that was as dry as the Sahara the moment before. "Hot-foot" is in order at all hours and the substitution of props keeps the entire company on the alert for mischief-makers.

Usually that routine is accomplished in "dead-pan" silence. To show indignation is to invite further disaster. In fact, to show any emotion is a violation of the rules of the game.

While "Swiss Miss," which will show Sunday and Monday at the Rialto theater, was in production, Stan Laurel was the victim of a gag that not only surprised him but gave him the laugh of a lifetime.

Instead of wearing the colorful Tyrolean garb worn by all members of the cast, Stan Kinsey, Laurel's stand-in, appeared one morning dressed as Abraham Lincoln. With the aid of the costume and make-up departments Kinsey was arrayed in the somber black suit of the '60's, with shiny top hat, beard and even the distinguishing mole on the face of the martyred president.

In retaliation for the "gag" Laurel made Kinsey learn the entire Gettysburg address and recite it with appropriate gestures to Oliver Hardy, Della Lind, Walter Wolf King and other members of the cast.

Anger Japanese troops. On Aug. 28 the Nanking Pass was forced, gateway to the west. Southward toward Tai-yuan rolled the invaders.

But in the meantime it became clear that to hold the north, aid from the south would have to be cut off. Opportunity soon came. A Japanese adherent was killed at the Hungao airport at Shanghai, creating another "incident." On Aug. 11 a waiting naval force was landed at Shanghai.

Within two days a desperate battle developed with Chinese troops rushed in to repel the invaders. Air bombing killed thousands of civilians, endangered or destroyed foreign property. It took two months to drive the Chinese troops out of Shanghai and into

Wrestling to Be Suspended Here

Boxing, However, Will Continue, Says Promoter E. H. Byers

After the small turnout to Friday night's program Promoter E. H. Byers announced that the weekly wrestling matches would be suspended for the time being.

The all fight card scheduled for Tuesday night has been changed and will probably be put on Thursday night.

D. K. Carson, local negro who won a close decision over Lee Roy Daniels, Fulton heavyweight fighter, on last Tuesday's card has been signed for the five round main event on next week's program. Carson and Daniels meet in a return bout at the request of local fans.

In the semi-final Roy Taylor, local high school athlete, meets Lloyd Howell of the Alton CCC camp for three rounds. Both these boys are amateurs and are fighting as such. No compensation of any kind will be awarded them.

Another big heavyweight battle royal will be added to the program. The exact date and the remainder of the card will be announced Tuesday.

On Dec. 13 Nanking also was taken, and the conquering troops ran riot in a frenzy of looting and terrorism. By this time the northern provinces had been conquered, and the Japanese vanguard was approaching the Yellow river on its way southward. Through the bitter winter weather the armies remained locked in continued conflict. On Dec. 12 the U. S. gunboat Panay was bombed and sunk in the Yangtze by Japanese planes.

Future of World May Be at Stake The Japanese spring campaign was aimed at uniting the northern and southern armies, and from Tsingtao Japanese troops gradually absorbed the line of the Lunghai railroad, principal Chinese east-west artery. Resistance was bitter, and in April China scored its most notable military success by routing and almost wiping out a Japanese force at Taihichwang.

Japan poured in strong reinforcements to storm Suchow and Chengchow, closing the gap between the Japanese armies.

Present Japanese operations are along the Yangtze river aimed at Hankow, provisional capital of the Chiang Kai-shek regime.

Japan probably has 750,000 soldiers in China proper, and must keep around 250,000 in Manchoukuo and the northern provinces to fight off guerrillas, maintain order, and be ready for a possible attack from Russia.

The "border incident" which Japan evidently expected could be quickly concluded by swiftly strokes of a small force has been expanded into a major war with the future of China, Japan, all of Asia, and perhaps of the entire world at stake.

Plans Announced For Western Trip

Major Addresses Scheduled by F. D. in Ohio, Kentucky and Oklahoma

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced details Friday for his coming western trip, including scheduled major addresses in Ohio, Kentucky and Oklahoma.

Leaving Washington July 7, the president will speak July 8 at the north-west territory celebration at Moriata, O., and at Latonia race track in Covington, Ky., on July 9 he will make an address at the fair grounds in Oklahoma City.

He also will make off-the-train appearances at Amarillo, Texas, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego, Calif., and probably will speak at all four.

Mr. Roosevelt will review the United States fleet at San Francisco July 14. Speeches already scheduled from the year platform on his train include Louisville and Bowling Green, Ky., July 8, and Pueblo, Colo., July 12. A number of other platform appearances probably will be made, since the president's pre-arranged schedules for trips rarely include all stops he actually makes.

Mr. Roosevelt's plans will take him into four states where Democratic senators, claiming his support, are seeking re-election. The Marietta address will take him into the territory where Senator Robert J. Bulkley is campaigning for another term.

The three Kentucky speeches will place him in the middle of the hot fight in which Alben W. Barkley, Democratic leader of the senate, is opposed for re-nomination by Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

Arrangements for his Oklahoma City speech were made by Senator Elmer Thomas, who is opposed for re-nomination by Governor E. W. Marland and Representative Gomer Smith. Senator William G. McAdoo was active in urging the chief executive to stop for speeches in California, near the end of his train trip, which ends July 16 at San Diego. At that port he will board the Cruiser Houston for two weeks of cruising and fishing in the Pacific.

The president's Pueblo, Colo., appearance will be in the home state of Senator Alva B. Adams who has opposed some of the administration's policy. There has been talk that Mr. Roosevelt would speak in Georgia and South Carolina when he returns from his cruise. In Georgia, Senator Walter F. George, an active opponent of many administration moves, is up for re-nomination. South Carolina's Senator E. D. Smith, a frequent administration foe, also is up for a new six-year term.

Mr. Roosevelt probably will land from his cruise some place close to the Georgia-South Carolina coast and plans a brief stop at his Warm Springs, Ga., cottage.

The cruise will take him to the Galapagos and Coco Solos Islands, across the equator for a short distance. Reaching the Horizon will go through the Panama Canal to some Gulf of Mexico or Atlantic port.

State Civil Service Budget Cut 50 Per Cent

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—Arkansas' state civil service department entered its second fiscal year Friday with a budget cut more than 50 per cent under that on which it operated during the 1937-38 period.

Dr. K. O. Warner, personnel director, said the reduction was necessary because $12,000 supplied last year from the governor's emergency fund was not now available. The department has a legislative appropriation of $11,800, the same amount as last year.

Warner announced release, under the retrenchment program, of Chief Examiner J. J. Donovan, formerly principal examiner for the Detroit city civil service commission. Donovan obtained immediate employment as examiner for the unemployment compensation division of the state labor department.

The personnel department announced that 14 eligibles had been listed for appointment as principal social workers for the child welfare division of the state welfare department.

When Divorce Occurs, Ladies' Names Pile Up

By JOAN DURHAM AP Feature Service Writer

What name should a divorced woman use? That depends on whether or not there are children.

If there are, most women will retain their ex-husband's last name. If not, most states have laws permitting them to resume their maiden names.

Usually the divorced woman uses hers and her husband's last name. If, for example, Martha Social marries Charles Firsthusband and then divorces him she becomes Mrs. Social Firsthusband. Note that the names are not hyphenated. She signs legal papers "Martha Social Firsthusband."

The Sound of Names Occasionally names sound odd when placed next to each other. In such cases, the order may be reversed. For example, Dorothy White marries Donald Katt. Mrs. Katt White would sound better than Mrs. White Katt.

The divorced wife should not use her husband's full name after the divorce. He may remarry and situations might arise which would prove embarrassing. Nor should the first wife call herself Mrs. Martha Firsthusband, for example, since never—except on legal documents—should a woman's Christian name be prefixed by "Mrs."

If You Need Help: After the divorce, embarrassing things almost always happen. All of them cannot be foreseen, but these pointers may help those whose friends are divorced: Don't bring up the subject of the divorced husband or wife in the other's presence. If the ex-wife or ex-husband is to be mentioned let the former wife or husband do it. It is, of course, in extremely bad taste for

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Everywhere on a farm there are pictures—simple, pleasing snapshots that will give your albums new appeal.

THE man who says "nothing ever happens on a farm" certainly isn't talking about pictures. On almost any farm, if you keep your eyes open, you will find enough snapshot material to keep the camera busy from early morning to late at night—and still not exhaust the supply.

Farm animals offer scores of picture chances—woolly lambs in the sun, a hen fussing over her brood of chicks, cows being driven in for milking, pigs at the trough (or their owner summoning them with a lusty shout), horses drinking, ducks wading in a line about the yard or taking an afternoon "cruise" in the pond.

Work scenes in the field make excellent pictures, and fresh-plowed land with long deep furrows is good for pattern snapshots. The orchard in bloom is a scene of beauty, and all around the house and barn lot there are details which make pictures. Get a snap of Grandfather whitening, mending a single-tree, or busy at a whirling grindstone. Picture shady fence corners, old-time zigzag fences of laid rails, the battered wooden bucket at the well and the worn saw-horse or chopping block in the woodlot. Look for snaps down by the shady spring-house and brook. And watch the special seasons—such as hog-killing time later on—when there is some unusual activity to picture.

Yes, there are plenty of farm snapshots—everything from a calf being fed from a bottle to corn-husking shots at harvest time and footprints in the snow in winter. You can point your camera in almost any direction, and find something. Try it, every chance you get, and watch your picture albums grow!

Siam—Will It Turn To Dictatorship?

LAST of the absolute monarchies, ancient Siam underwent a bloodless revolution in 1932, emerged with a new constitution declaring a limited monarchy, full franchise for the people, an elected parliament. Today there are signs that the land of Buddhist temples, elephants and gracious manners is turning toward dictatorship.

For democracy, apparently, has not penetrated the consciousness of Siam's 14,000,000 people and,
instead, the successes of Japan,
Germany and Italy are said to have fired the ambitions of Siam's leaders. Moreover, Siam is fearful lest it lose its independence to one of the several stronger nations hemming it in.

If this dictatorship comes, it will be military. Already the army is in complete control, expanding its activities each year. Should Siam face invasion some day, she will have bargaining power at least.
Right now China is wielding great power in Siam, flooding the tiny state with immigrants. Britain, France and Japan must also be watched, Siam feels. So she turns toward totalitarian rule. A current Siamese airmail stamp is shown here.

Chief Writes Letters to Careful Drivers

AUSTIN, Texas—(P)—Chief R. D.
Thorp of the Austin police department believes a good automobile driver should be commended for driving carefully if bad ones are to be arrested.
So he has asked traffic officers to report instances of careful driving in known dangerous spots. The chief writes the driver a personal letter—not a form one—telling him that his careful driving had been noted.
